WEEKLY BULLETIN OF THE MCCE

From 28 August to 3 September 2026

Major technology companies demand a global response to AI cyberattacks

Various technology multinationals have signed a framework agreement to coordinate defence against advanced digital threats that use artificial intelligence. This initiative promotes the real-time transfer of data on attack vectors to protect global critical infrastructures.

+ More information

Electric grids suffer serious attacks as a destabilising means

Smart electrical infrastructures face growing cyber threats due to the increase in connected devices and the use of obsolete technologies. These attacks seek to cause geopolitical or economic impact through the interruption of supply.

+ More information

Spain promotes public participation in the digital strategy

The Government promotes a participatory process to update the national strategy towards 2030. Various social and economic sectors collaborate in defining the new technological and security priorities.

+ More information

WEEKLY BULLETIN OF THE MCCE

From 28 August to 3 September 2026

Other relevant developments in cybersecurity

Additional analysis on the coordination of international responses to AI-powered threats and the need for shared governance frameworks.

+ More information

Advances in critical infrastructure protection

Updates on measures to strengthen the resilience of essential services against coordinated digital incidents.

+ More information

Other news

International cooperation intensifies

Countries increase information sharing to counter hybrid threats and automated disinformation campaigns.

+ More information

Technology sector updates

New initiatives for real-time threat intelligence sharing among major technology companies.

+ More information